Now

With F.M.L.

Beyond persuasion and open competition, I've always believed one stoops to conquer, to borrow from somebody's book title.

Such things seem silly in this world where a neat gutting seems more rewarded than some obscure memory of fair play.

Just a lot of people are taken advantage of because they are inclined the same way. But most of them don't have a newspaper and few of them have its protection, though it serves everyone.

I had a friend a few years ago who coined the phrase "Dare we reach for greatness" in an effort in another county for some special function no one here would appreciate, except one.

I remember his phrase when the possibility of the Dallas Symphony's first visit here popped up, drawing the usual mix of astonishment and indifference around here at the outset.

"Dare we?" I asked myself, a very special reason in mind.

"We dare!"

And we did.

And to everyone's astonishment, not one drop of blood was spilled, to borrow a phrase, not one cent was lost and not one promise was unkept.

In fact a very lasting project has been established for this community, I hope, pending notification that DSO will be back in March, 1974, as preliminarily planned.

And why? Because we dared.

Tax Notices Going Out

THOUSANDS OF TAX NOTICES are going out this week from city, county and school tax offices, some of which are shown here at the post office with Billy Peck preparing to sort them. The annual notices come every year at this time and bring some groans from some taxpayers whose assessments went up.

Milam Countians and out of town property owners will be receiving annual tax notices in the mails, with increases shown in the number of notices sent out this year.

The county tax office mailed out over 10,000 copies, an increase of some 500 over last year, according to Valter White, Milam County tax assessor-collector.

By paying early, taxpayers get a 3 percent discount on county taxes in October; 2 percent discount by paying in November and one percent in December.

White's schedule for his annual tax collecting tour of the county is:

Saturday, October 6 - Buckholts, till noon.

Tuesday, October 9 - Davilla

Friday, October 12 - Rockdale

Tuesday, October 16 - Gause

Friday, October 19 - Thorndale

Some 6,500 individual tax notices are being mailed by the Cameron Independent School tax office, according to Theo Aschenbeck, tax assessor - collector.

At 100 percent collection, school taxes would bring in $350,268 Aschenbeck said.

No figures were available at press-time on the number of city tax notices going out, but City Secretary Buddy Fuller said there are "quite a few new ones added this year."

Area Roundup

Dump Site Under Fire

GEORGETOWN

Geologist specialists were unanimous in their condenmation of the site approved by the Williamson County Commissioners Court for a solid waste disposal at Texas Crushed Stone. The proposed dump site is located at Texas Crushed Stone which is situated directly on top of the Edwards Limestone Formation-- the formation that provides the only drinkable water for the entire area. The danger would arise when rainwaer falls on the garbage and then filters down through the porus ground into the water supply.

Hospital Construction Starts

ROCKDALE

Wheels of progress continue to turn at a rapid clip at the construction site of Rockdale's new 47-bed, $2 million hospital project. Fill at the construction site is now up to grade and the contractor, BFW Construction Co. started drilling and puring concrete piers. Hanging of the structure stell may start this week and the slab will be poured as soon thereafter as plumbing work permits.

Thieves Try Deanville Bank

CALDWELL

The First State Bank of Deanville was broken into and robbed of approximately 30 safety deposit boxes, the contents of which have not been fully learned. The Burleson County Sheriff's Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation were called and are investigating the robbery. The thieves left their tools and torches in the bank. This is the third robbery attempt at the bank during the past two years.

School Discipline Eyed

WACO

School trustees at a called meeting voted to appoint a blue ribbon committee of seven people to investigate the discipline problems in the junior and senior high schools in Waco. The committee will report to the board on current conditions on school campuses in relation to extortion, bullying, fighting, intimidation and general lack of confidence of reporting to the school officials by parents or students when these incidents occur.

Briscoe Awards Grant

SOMERVILLE

Gov. Dolph Briscoe awarded a $4,276 grant to the Brazos Valley Development Council of Bryan to be used for purchasing technical equipment for law enforcement agencies in the region it serves, including Robertson County. The money came from the Criminal Justice Council, administrators of the Crime Control Act of 1973.

Kinsolving Lodge To Expand

BELTON

Extensive plans for expansion of facilities and services of Kinsolving Canyon Lodge have been announced by the new owner, Robert Barnett of Austin. He is finalizing plans for construction of hospital treatment facilities for a psychiatric center and will retain the crisis center for children which has been the purpose of the lodge for the past two years.

Russia-Bound Wheat Spills

McGREGOR

Russia-bound wheat was spread over the countryside about three miles north of Crawford when a burned out wheel journal on a Santa Fe freight car broke, causing 33 cars to derail. This marks the fifth train derailment in this area since July. The first happened just north of Mody when Russia-bound wheat again was the load.

Historic Church Calls New Pastor

The Little River Baptist Church, Texas' second oldest Baptist Church, has called the Rev. Eddie Fugate as pastor.

Located near Cameron, the church was established in 1849 and has consistently served residents since that time.

Fugate, a senior ministerial student at Baylor University in Waco, is from Corbin, Kentucky, where he formerly served as interim pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church.

He has also been active in over 125 evangelistic campaigns including the Billy Graham Crusades in Knoxville, Texas, and Lexington, Kentucky.

Juveniles, Parents Face Paying For Signs

Two juveniles and their parents are faced with paying for approximately 50 highway signs that were removed from Milam highways and thrown into the San Gabriel River, according to Sheriff Carl Black.

The sheriff said the signs were removed by the boys from between Rockdale and the Y near Cameron, the Rockdale-Tracy road, and the Rockdale-Bushdale road last week.

Black said no charges have been filed, and the boys were taken to the Texas Highway Department maintenance barn in Cameron where Supervisor John Parsons said it would cost from $700 to $1000 to replace the signs.

New signs have been ordered and will replace the stolen signs on the highways, Parsons said.

$50 REWARD

The sheriff said he is offering a $50 reward for information leading to the arrest of the person who made a hoax call to the Cameron Police Department Tuesday night, calling out emergency equipment to the Cameron Airpark.

The caller said a plane would make an emergency landing, and law enforcement officers and equipment waited in vain at the airpark until 11 p.m. for a plane that didn't show up.

Gause Man Drowns In Little River

A 22-year-old man from the Gause area was drowned Wednesday afternoon when he fell off a bridge over Little River near Sugar Loaf Mountain.

Pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Leonard Allen of Rockdale was James Gary Wyatt, whose body was found hours later by the Hearne rescue squad.

According to two companions, Wyatt fell off the bridge about 4:30 p.m. and his body was not recovered until about 9:15 p.m. The water was about 6 feet deep where Wyatt fell in.

Sheriff Carl Black said the Cameron volunteer fire department rescue squad was called to help in the search for the body, but it was found before the men arrived at the scene of the drowning.

Wyatt's body was taken to Hartsfield Funeral Home in Hearne.

Libya Awaits Reply To Oil Firms Deadline

TRIPOLI

Reuter -- The days of operations in Libya by the major international oil companies could be numbered as an unpublicized Oct. 1 Deadline nears for them to accept the government's take-over of a controlling interest.

When Libya's government anounced on Sept. 1, that it was nationalizing a 51 percent share of the "majors" operating here, it gave them a 30-day period - not reported at the time - in which to accept the measure.

The announcement, climaxing celebrations of the fourth anniversary of the coup which toppled the Libyan monarchy and brought the energetic regime of Col. Muammar Gaddafi to power, came after the expiry of an ultimaium from Libya to the majors. Involved were the American majors, Texaco, Standard Oil of California, Mobil and Exxon, and the Anglo-Dutch Shell concern.

The ultimatum called on them to agree to the same kind of terms which had been accepted in August by big independent oil companies operating here - continental, Marathon Amerada Hess and Occidental.

TheAugust agreement signalled the collapse of the common front major and independent companies had once tried to present to Libyan demands, and the Libyan leaders were quick to follow it up.

The independents accepted compansation on the basis of net book-value with buy-back prices well above previous market prices.

(The buy-back prices are those at which Libya would sell back to the companies oil from its share.)

The two-day ultimatum deadline passed without a reply from the majors, but their reaction was that the terms were unacceptable. The majors most important oil production is not in Libya. And their basic worry is of setting a precedent which might affect their much more important interests in the Persian Gulf area, if countries there try to follow theLibyan example.

The independents, on the other hand, are heavily dependent on production in Libya, the worlds fifth-ranking oil producing nation with a daily average of 2,200,000 barrels.

With the back of the major-independent alliance effectively broken, Libya was in a comfortable position to press a hard line.

This country of two million people already has vast financial reserves and earns much more than it can spend.

And Maj. Abdel Salem Jalloud, Libya's prime minister and chief economic supervisor, who has conducted the oil talks, told a news conference in Tripoli on September 2, that the independents would be authorized to increase their production to cover losses resulting from the absence of the majors.

The daily production of the majors in Libya is relatively modest, compared with their production elsewhere, and totals some 825,000 barrels on average.

Oil industry sources calculated that the production of Occidental, could be almost doubled from the current 340,000 barrels a day to 640,000, and that of the other three independents could be raised by some 200,000 barrels. The loss in the market would thus amount to little more than 100,000 barrels, well below what is considered critical in market conditions.

In fact, Occidental's production immediately after the Libyan revolution four years ago totalled 800,000 barrels daily but this was later cut back by order of the government, which claimed Occidental was exhausting oilfields.

At least one major grouping - Amoseas, which links Standard Oil of California and Texaco - has notified the government of its intention to go for international arbitration of the nationalization dispute. And Exxon is trying to fight the government's decision to exclude from the nationalization measure its huge liquefied gas plant, for which compensation would be high. The plant at Brega began producing and exporting only two years ago.

Their Public Measure...

Governor Briscoe apparently is concerned about his image on television or so a speech by press aide Bob Hardesty would suggest.

Hardesty is quoted saying that television appearance is, in effect, "only skin deep." that it has nothing to do with the ability to do a job."

This is true, but turn the coin around. An able public man may also make a favorable physical impression, may cross the electronic footlights into those homes watching.

John Connally is an able man, for example, and he looks the part a casting director would fill with an actor who looks like John Connally.

Lyndon Johnson was an able man, one of the best minds in Washington during his White House tenure, even according to his critics. But he failed to project a favorable physical or audial impression to most of the country.

Which brings up a point for public men in Texas who feel television works against them. If they don't sound Texas, they might sound suspect as an outlander, particularly if there is no Southern drawl.

Could it be that Texans are changing their own view of themselves to the point that a public man must not only be able but able to project this condition? And not necessarily in Texanese?

It is a good guess that TV viewers also are voters or at least taxpayers and are consequently suspicious of all public men, though perhaps they should not be, whether handsome or ugly, able or incompetent.

We are in a period of doubt and only solution finders will be rewarded. How they talk, look or seem will count for little.

What they do will be their public measure.

Past The Year 2,000....

At last, a major publication is saying at length what has been so obvious so long.

And that is the American people are beginning to question the ideas of "bigger is better."

TIME in a current edition explores this changing view in terms of cities, in terms of economics, in terms of people.

Your Herald has held for years that such thinking is myth and counterproductive. We have referred to the ultimate reward of dinosaurs, which was extinction without distinction except for an enduring contribution to modern man's fuel supply, which now is short.

Examples of success of historic proportion begun in minutia abound: Christianity begun in tiny Israel, the spark of philosophical light in Greece, the handfull of Colonial revolutionaries among countless others.

And when the concept is exploited to size, it begins to wither if not collapse, like the dinosaur wallowing in swamps, unable to move its girth on dry land, the herbivores unable to find enough food to graze on, finally providing too little food for the carnivores.

We are rediscovering the wonder of adaptability, which for the human race is the mark of survival and reason for developing the human mind, still only about 10 per cent productive within its potential.

TIME is documenting what the individual in this country has been too busy to admit for the past generazion, whose desire for selectivity will dominate his interests well past the year 2,000.

Mabas Day For Marriages

By Ali Mehrawari

TEHERAN, Iran Reuter -- For hundreds of young Moslem couples in Iran, the last Sunday in August was the day on which they rushed to get married.

One reason was that they wanted to benefit from the blessing of a Mabas Day marriage.

Another reason was that they wanted to be wed before the start of Ramadan, the month of fasting and austerity, which begins on September 29.

Mabas Day commemorates the occasion, 1352 years ago when Allah called on Mohammed to become his prophet -- the day that the Islamic religion was born.

It is considered the happiest occasion for getting married by Iranian Moslems. It is also a day when believers go to mosques for prayers.

In many mosques and at festive gatherings benevolent members of the community sponsor free meals, sweets and fruits for other believers.

While most shops were closed on Mabas Day, florists and confectioners remained open -- and did a good business.

The pattern was the same throughout the country-weddings, festivities, happy religious gatherings, prayers and sermons about the blessings of Islam and greatness of the prophet Mohammed.

Over 150 young couples got married, setting an all-time record for weddings on any one Mabas Day in the holy city of Meshed in northeast Iran, newspapers reported.

Meshed, where the shrine of Mohammed's descendant Iman Pegya is located, is a holy pilgrimage city for Moslems.

Ancient Iranian City Is Tourists Favorite Spot

SHIRAZ, Iran Reuter -- The ancient Iranian city of Shiraz is rapidly emerging as a favorite spot for tourists, many of them escaping from the blazing heat of the gulf coast.

A large portion of the visitors are wealthy Arabs from the gulf emirates and the southern Iranian Islands, where life in summer is made unbearable by sweltering heat, warm winds and high humidity.

Shiraz is by tradition the city of poets, roses and nightingales, cypresses and wine, bulbous domes and terraced gardens. It is perched 5,000 feet up on the Iranian plateau, where the sun shines less fiercely and a cool breeze blows at night.

The city has a relaxed atmosphere, modern hotels and hospitable people. There are honking taxis in the spacious avenues, but there are still peaceful gardens, graceful old buildings and a sense of the past.

As the tourist come in unprecedented numbers, city officials have called on the city's residents -- over a quarter of a million of them -- to open their doors to visitors and make up the shortage of hotel beds.

Shiraz, despite its size and its modern airport and hotels, is less brash and cosmopolitan than Teheran. Two of its tourist sights which have all the charm of old Iran, were in fact built in this century.

These are the tombs of the mediaeval poets Hafiz and Saadi. Set among orange trees and well-planned gardens on the city outskirts, the tombs have traditional colonnades, colored tiles and inscriptions.

Shiraz is the capital of Fars Province, the historic region which gave its name to Persia and to the Farsi language now spoken by most Iranians.

Many tourists, however, head out of Shiraz to visit Iran's oldest architectural masterpiece.

Not far to the north, two or three hours drive on the road to the romantic city of Isfahan, lies the cradle of Persian history, the ancient palace from where Cyrus, Darius and Xerxes ruled their vast empires 2,500 years ago.

Here stands the lonely tomb of Cyrus, a gabled stone edifice surrounded by ruined palaces.

Not far away is Persepolis, the huge man-made platform where descendants of Cyrus built a massive complex of palaces.

Nestling at the foot of a range of hills, the palaces look out over a vast plain. The edge of the platform falls away 60 feet down to the impressive tented village built in 1971 to house the heads of state from around the world who came to celebrate the 2,500th anniversary of the Iranian monarchy.

On the palace stairways, the carvings show figures from all over the empire bringing their tribute to Darius and Xerxes.

And on one magnificent archway there is a less impressive kind of carving -- the names of an earlier generation of tourists, the 19th century travellers from Germany, England, Russia and America.

There to show that tourism is nothing new in this part of the world are the neatly-scratched names of at least one British diplomat and the journalist Henry Stanley, who found explorer David Livingstone.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

People are always talking about inflation, about the high cost of things from groceries to medicine to tractor bolts to borrowing money, but I don't know of anything that inflation has hit harder than politics.

I guess you'd call it inflation, if you mean paying twice as much for the same product, with or without a warranty. Just because you're paying more doesn't mean you're getting a better tractor bolt or Congressman.

According to an article I read in a newspaper last night, 1,896 candidates running for U. S. House and Senate seats last year reported spending more than 77 million dollars in primary and general elections.

How much was unreported is a matter between the candidates and their consciences, something I wash my hands of.

Now less than a fourth of those 1,896 candidates got elected, but if they'd all got elected, it means they spent 77 million dollars for offices which would pay, at the current salary of $42,500 a year, about 80 million dollars . Talk about inflation!

Naturally those candidates , except in a very few rare instances, didn't spend their own money. It came from contributors, the vast majority of whom were big contributors, on the theory I guess that the more money a man has the more interested he is in good government.

Now some people dispute this, saying a lot of big contributors are just making investments with a satisfactory return on their money expected, and to offset this some people are proposing that all contributions to campaigns be banned, that elections be financed by a dollar a head tax on all citizens.

Under this system, no person would have more than 50 cents apiece invested in his two Senators and, depending on the size of the state, around 10 to 15 cents in his Congressman.

This is what I'd call whipping inflation.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Bertram S. Brown, M.D., Director
National Institute of Mental Health

Although there are no fully guaranteed rules that you can follow to ensure your children's growing up in perfect physical health, it's even more difficult in the case of mental health.

There simply are no easy formulas for rearing mentally healthy children. Parents should not be misled into believing that there are.

Both children and their parents may experience confusion, anxiety, and uncertainty as the young go through the process of reaching maturity. No system of childrearing will provide predictable results.

Nonetheless, there are a few basic factors which seem to play a very important part in helping children develop well.

The first is the emotional state of their parents, the degree to which they have themselves had positive experiencs in growing up.

A second crucial factor in childrearing seems to be the degree to which parents can allow their children to grow in their own ways, without pressuring them into satisfying the dreams of the parents.

A third crucial factor is the degree to which the total community environment seems to be "for" or "against" children.

These factors are discussed in a new publication of HEWs National Institute of Mental Health. A number of other significant points are also thoughtfully explored, including such questions as:

- Is heredity or environment the more important?
- What is "normal behavior" in a child?
- What are the major symptoms of mental illness in children?
- What kind of discipline is best for a child?

Registrations Inch To 120 Million

More than 118 million motor vehicles were registered in the United States during 1972, according to Wm. M. Coffey, general manager of the American Automobile Association, Texas Division.

Citing an annual Federal Highway Administration report, Coffey said total registrations came to 118,618,162 -- 5,629,963 more than the 1971 figure.

Automobile, truck and bus registrations all increased in 1972. Autos and trucks showed a higher percentage increase than the previous compilation.

There were 96,948,813 automobiles registered in 1972 representing a 4.5 percent rise over the previous year, and 21,261,642 trucks, a 7.2 percent rise. Buses in use totaled 407,706, a 2.6 percent rise.

(Bus totals are estimates of the numbers in operation, rather than registrations, to avoid the multiple counting es being registered in more than one state.)

The same seven states cited in the last report still led in motor vehicle registrations during 1972:

California had 12.9 million; Texas, 7.3 million; New York, 7.1 million; Pennsylvania, 6.3 million; Ohio, 6.2 million; Illinois, 5.6 million; Michigan, 5.0 million; and Florida, 4.8 million.

Twenty-six other states each had more than a million.

Texas had a total of 7,315,711 motor vehicle registrations in 1972, an increase of 4.7 percent compared with 1971.

3 Amendments Outlined

By Bill Hobby

AUSTIN

Cities and counties operate in partnership with the state, deriving their powers from the state Constitution and statutes.

Three of the nine constitutional amendments you will be asked to vote on this November 6 deal with the powers accorded these local units of government.

In its efforts to provide for the conservation and development of our natural resources, the state is empowered to create conservation and reclamation districts. With the rapid growth of our cities, the number of these districts designed to deal with urban problems has grown quickly.

Amendment 4 would require that a copy of a bill to create a conservation and reclamation district be submitted to each city and county affected. Then, the cities and counties would have the chance to file their approval or objections with the governor, lieutenant governor and speaker of the House of Representatives.

Since the Texas Gulf Coast is often the target of hurricanes and tropical storms, residents usually have a difficult time insuring their property unless their area is adequately protected by sea walls or breakwaters.

Since 1876, our Constitution has permitted cities and counties to levy taxes to construct these tidal barriers. Originally, the Constitution required a majority of two-thirds of the taxpayers residing in an area to approve such a taxing authority. In 1932, this was changed to require two-thirds approval of those actually voting on the issue.

Amendment 5 would further change this requirement to a simple majority of the resident taxpayers voting in such an election.

In the period after the Civil War many Texas cities and towns spent large amounts of money and went heavily in debt. Tax rates also increased sharply. The 1876 Constitution restricted the permissible rates and purpose of local as well as state taxes.

Amendment 8 would require all incorporated cities, town, and villages to levy such ad valorem taxes as are necessary to pay the principal and interest on general obligations they issue. The Legislature is empowered to limit the total principal amount of general obligations which may be issued.

Teacher Exams Set

Mary Hardin-Baylor College will be the site of the National Teacher Examinations on November 10, 1973, in Room 111 of Wells Science Hall.

Dr. Dorothy McConnell, dean of professional services, stated that many college seniors preparing to teach and teachers applying for certification, licensure, or those seeking positions in school systems which encourage or require the NTE will be taking the tests.

Bulletins of information describing registration procedures and containing registration forms as well as sample test questions may be obtained from the Center for Counseling and Professional Services or directly from the National Teacher Examinations, Educational Testing Service, Box 911 Princeton, New Jersey.

Wood Holds 5 Tons

A block of wood one inch square and 2-1/4 inches long can support 10,000 pounds, roughly the weight of three automobiles.

Debate Still Rages Over Mysterious Moon Nuggets

Some superstitious people once believed that witches could call down a vapor from the moon for use in their incantations.

Something far more solid than Hecate's "vap-rous drop" may indeed have reached earth from the moon.

Many scientists believe that tektites -- small blobs of black or green glassy material -- splashed to earth about a million years ago when a huge meteorite struck the moon, forming the crater Tycho.

The friction of the impact and of their fall through the atmosphere heated and shaped the fragments that reached earth.

Tekitites usually weigh from a fraction of an ounce to a pound. They sometime appear in symmetric shapdrops, dumbells, and disks.

The nuggets of moon matter have been found in Southeast Asia, Austrilia, the Ivory coast, Czechoslovakia, and the United States. Some of the nodules have been found on the ocean floor, the National Geographic Society says.

Cave men supposedly tipped their weapons with tektites, and Australian aborigines used them for slingshot ammunition.

Dr. Dean Chapman, chief of the Thermo and Gas Dynamics Division at Ames Research Center, near San Francisco, believes the tektites found in Australia probably were melted on their way through earth's atmosphere about 700,000 years ago.

"We know how fast they were traveling by the way they have melted," says Dr. Chapman. "And by their distribution on earth we can calculate their trajectories.

"All this points squarely toward the southern part of the moon for their origin, and Tycho fits exactly. We believe it is a relatively young crater, about the same age as the Australian Tektites, because its rays have not yet eroded away."

Not all scientists agree that tektites orgniated on the moon. Some suggest that they were gouged from the earth by meteors. Others think they are melted fragments of earth's crust that were catapulted into orbit by a meteorite impace and have since returned to earth.

One investigator suggested that a comet head collided with the earth, exploding with the energy of a half-million hydrogen bombs. Bits of melted earth materials -- tektites -- would have been scattered over large areas by the impact.

Scientists are constantly on the prowl for solid chunks of "moon stuff." An investigator who went to the Middle West a few years ago asked farmers to keep an eye out for tektites while plowing their fields.

"Know what exactly this is you are looking for young man?" asked an old farmer.

The scientist explained, "We're looking for moon rocks -- that's what you might call it."

Without blinking an eye, the farmer replied, "Well, fella, have you looked in your head?"

Market Report

Although the "thaw" on meat prices in retail markets hasn't resulted in immediate high price levels expected by some, price fluctuations are likely for a few weeks, Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt predicted.

The consumer marketing information specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, termed it "wishful thinking" to believe food prices will ever go as low as they were.

"However, if the supply and demand system is allowed to work, food should be as low as anything in our consuming lives," she added.

"Pork loin roasts and chops -- and quarter loins sliced -- offer good values this week. Hams, picnics, shoulder roasts and steaks also make good pork buys."

In general, look for best beef values on round steaks and roasts, ground beef, and arm and blade pot roasts and steaks, the specialist continued.

"Chicken remains one of the better buys at meat counters -- with whole birds the most economical choice."

Parliament Debates Equality

LONDON

Britains nine million working women have been given their biggest boost towards job equality to date in government porposals to ban sex discrimination by law.

The new proposals, which come at the end of a long struggle for some sort of sex legislation, would attempt "To eliminate unfair discrimination on grounds of sex wherever possible and to change the prejudiced attitudes which give rise to it."

The planned legislation would work in both ways - while women would have equal opportunities to seek jobs normally held by males, advertisements calling for "dolly bird" secretaries or "girl Fridays" would also be banned.

For the first time, women would be given legally backed equality of opportunity in "three major areas of their lives: employment, training and education, " the government promised.

Getting the new legislation through parliament may prove difficult however as that institution still seems to be a hotbed of "male chauvinist" attitudes in spite of the presence of a vociferous handful of female parliamentarians.

There was uproar in the House of Commons early last year when debate on an anti-discrimination bill was adjourned.

Women members of parliament from both the opposition Labor Party and the Conservative Government benches roared "shame" and "disgraceful" when Conservative Ronald Bell blocked the bills progress by "talking it out" - speaking on it until the allotted time for debating was up, thus causing it to be adjourned without a vote.

And in the public gallery militant women hissed when a junior minister suggested women were better fitted to "an extension of their domestic role" in jobs.

In 1970 parliament approved a bill to give women workers equal pay for equal work but since then they have sought more than just equal pay - they have pressed for equal job opportunities too.

The new proposals, which would seem to satisfy their demands, do have some exceptions. Employment Minister Maurice MacMillan has pointed out that certain one-sex jobs - midwifery, mining and the merchant navy would be exempted.

Nor do they extend to the aristocracy or royalty. The home office says a male heir will continue to take precedence over his sisters when it comes to titles - and to the British throne.

Shower Honors Bride-Elect

A Come and Go Shower honored Miss Linda Hollas, bride-elect of Patrick David Blinka at the home of Mrs. George Hollas.

A minature blue net umbrella and white carnations centered the refreshment table where heart shaped petits-fours and punch were served. Assisting at the refreshment table were Mrs. Billy Scarbrough, Mrs. Tom Rayborn and Miss Judy Hollas.

Hostesses for the bridal shower were Mrs. Anton Hanel, Mrs. Jim Cleypas of Temple and Mrs. Hollas.

Miss Hollas and Mr. Blinka will be married October 13 at St. Monica Church.

Cougars Fall To Yoe Might

By Glenn Cummings

Defense was the name of the game as the Cameron Yoemen defeated the once highly-ranked Rosebud - Lott Cougars at Cougar Stadium in Travis, 14-8.

To win the game, Cameron Head Coach Ed Cauley had said "We will have to control the ball and stop Kevin Scott," and this is just what the Yoemen did.

The entire game was a hard fought defensive battle, with the rugged Yoe defense coming out on top.

The Cougars seemed to be shaken immensely by the Yoe defense all night long. They were haunted throughout the night by bobbled punt receptions, poor snaps, penalties, two fumbles and two costly interceptions. However, Cameron could do little wrong as they didn't have a single turnover and were not penalized a yard.

Neither team scored during the first half, but both teams had scoring opportunities. Cameron's came first, as they were guided to the Cougar 12 yard line by the running of George Whiteside and Jafus White. However, the Yoemen were unable to put it all together, and on 4th and 11 on the 12 yard line, Gene Kopriva's field goal attempt was off to the right and with 2:31 left in the first quarter, the score remained 0 - 0.

Rosebud - Lott threatened next, as they drove down to the Yoe 21 yard line. On third and 3, Yoe linebacker Ernie DeLaRosa, dropped the Cougar ball carrier for a 3 yard loss, thus sparking the Yoe defense. On the next play Paul Vaculin broke up the pass intended for Kevin Scott, and Cameron took over on downs on their own 21 yard line.

It seemed as if all scoring hopes during the first half were over, until the Yoemen recovered a bobbled punt reception on the Cougar 44 yard line. With little time remaining the Yoe offense went to work and drove down to the Cougar 1 yard line. At this point Cameron was rushed by the clock, showing 26 seconds and were unable to score, after a 4th down pass was broken up in the end zone. The half-time score remained at 0 - 0.

Following the second half kick-off, the Cougars drove down to the Yoe 15 yard line. Here the Yoe defense stood tall and Rosebud-Lott had to settle for a 30 yard field goal attempt.

The kick was unsuccessful and the score remained 0 - 0.

Following a Yoemen punt the Cougars regained possession, and on first down from the Cougar 34 yard line, the turning point of the game occurred. Gary Trdy intercepted a mis-guided Kevin Scott pass on the Cameron 38 yard line.

Cameron, aided by a 36 yard run by Willie Bell, moved the ball to the one yard line and on f rst down Whiteside carried the ball over for the first score of the ball game. With 1:49 left in the 3rd quarter, Gene Kopriva kicked the extra point and Cameron led 7 - 0.

Perhaps the Cougars were shaken as they had to play catch-up football, a game they were not too familiar with. Scott fumbled on the series of downs following the Yoe kick-off and Bruce Zarosky, who led the Yoe defense all night, pounced on the ball on the Rosebud-Lott 49 yard line.

After regaining possession of the ball the Cougars again turned it over to the Yoemen, when Vaculin intercepted a pass on the Rosebud-Lott 35 yard line. Vaculin's interception set up Cameron's second touchdown, which occurred when Jafus White scored from the 2.

With 3:23 remaining in the game, Kopriva kicked the extra point and brought the score to a 14 - 0 Cameron lead.

Following the Yoe kick-off, the Cougars scored their only touchdown. They drove 56 yards in three plays with Terry Tomlinson scoring on a 29 yard run. Walker ran for the extra points and the game ended at 14 - 8 in favor of Cameron.

Belton Tramples Rockdale Tigers

The mighty Belton Tigers rolled over the Rockdale Tigers, 22 - 0, Friday night at Rockdale stadium.

The Big Red's offense didn't come to life until the second half, but Belton's defense was tough throughout the game. The defense held Rockdale to only six yards total offense and only two first downs.

Belton didn't score until the second period, when Ted Williams kicked a 37 yard field goal.

However, Belton added 10 more points during the third quarter when Bryan Sweeney ran 74 yards around left end for a touchdown and Williams kicked another field goal of 29 yards. The half time score was Belton 13, Rockdale 0.

In the second half, Belton scored their first passing touchdown of the year, on a 39yard pass hauled in by Booker Russell. The touchdown ended a 62 yard drive and Williams kicked the extra point.

Belton's final points came late in the 4th quarter when Rockdale's Larry Young was caught in the end zone by Jay Warrick and Bryan Hargrove. The two - pointer brought the final score to 22 - 0 in favor of Belton.

Buckholts Drops Aquilla By 55-6

The powerful Buckholts Badgers whipped Aquilla 55-6 last Thursday night in Aquilla.

Buckholts dominated Aquilla throughout the entire game, on both offense and defense. The Badger offense was led by Larry Orsag, Early Webb, and Carl Tomascik. The defense held Aquilla to only one touchdown. Defensive standouts were, Elbert Svetlik and Doug Williams.

The game was called during the 3rd quarter because of the six-man football 45 point rule. The final score was Buckholts 55, Aquilla 6.

The Buckholts Bagders will play Abbott in Buckholts next week, and then will enter district competition. The Badgers are looking forward to a district championship this year and Head Coach Mike Shain feels confident that the Badgers can capture the title.

Rogers Bows To Franklin

A powerful Franklin team passed for two touchdowns Friday night to capture a 20 - 19 victory over the Rogers Eagles.

Rogers was haunted by fumbles in the first half, a missed conversion in the 4th quarter, and the fact that they had to play catch-up football almost all night.

In the first quarter the Eagles fumbled on the 22 yard line, and a few plays later Franklin fullback Ronald Sanders scored on a 10 yard scamper. Quarterback Brad Artry threw to Vicente Hidrogo for the two point conversion and Franklin led 8 - 0.

Later in the first quarter the combination of Arty to Hidrogo struck again on an 18 yard pass play. The extra point attempt was unsuccessful and the Franklin Lions led 14 - 0.

Down 14 points, the Eagles did not give up. During the second quarter the Eagles launched a powerful offensive attack and pulled within a point of Franklin.

The Eagles first scored on a 10 yard scoring play by fullback Glen Smith. Charles Green added the extra point, and Rogers decreased Franklins lead to 14 - 7.

The touchdown that brought the Eagles within one point, came when halfback Billy Nabours ran 49 yards for a Eagle touchdown. Rogers could have tied the score but the extra point attempt was unsuccessful and Franklin retained the 14-13 lead.

Both teams scored again during the second half, Franklin on a 12 yard pass to James Ellison and Rogers on a 10 yard run by Eagle Quarterback Mike Green.

Rogers made a final attempt to win the game, but the two point conversion was unsuccessful.

CONSTRUCTION ON TARGET -- The multimillion dollar expansion at Aluminum Company of America's Rockdale Works is on schedule, according to Fred P. Bergeron, manager. The new unit, which will produce up to seven 30-foot, 42,000 pound ingots, will be operative next April. The facility will not increase employment but will broaden the plant's capability and strengthen its competitive position among Alcoa's network of smelters, Bergeron said. The larger sheet ingot will be shipped to Alcoa fabricating plants in the Midwest to form building siding, foil and can stock. Alcoa construction engineers Dusty Obermeyer, left and Paul Goodart review progress. Alcoa Photo.

Veterans Advised To Keep Eye On Calendar

Recently returned Vietnam Era veterans are advised to "keep an eye on the calendar" to avoid overlooking important federal and state obligations and benefits, according to Jack Coker, VA Regional Office Director.

Coker suggested veterans follow this recommended schedule:

* As soon as possible, register with local state employment service office. (Veterans have up to one year to apply for unemployment compensation, but applications filed after a long period of unemployment could result in a lower rate of unemployment compensation).
* In 10 days, report address to Selective Service through local board (in person or by mail).
* In 30 days, register with Selective Service or any local board, if not already registered.
* In 90 days, apply to former employer for re-employment.
* In 120 days, (one year if totally disabled at time of separation) convert Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (without examination) to private, commercial policy.
* Within one year from date of notice of VA rating on disability, apply to any VA office for G. I. life insurance based on service-connected disability.
* Within one year, apply to any VA office for dental care.
* As soon as possible, apply to any VA office for G. I. education or training, which must be completed within eight years of separation from military service.

VA notes there are no time limits for veterans to:

* Apply to any VA office for a G. I. loan guaranty to buy a farm, to buy, build or improve a home.
* File claims with any VA office for compensation for service-connected disabilities or disease, or apply for hospital care.
* Seek assistance from local offices of state employment service in finding employment or entering Labor Department job training programs.

VA added that its 72 Veterans Assistance Centers around the country are ready to help veterans get a fresh start in civilian life.

Noise Keeps Children From Reading Skills

Children who live in noisy environments may have trouble learning to read, a University of Texas psychologist has found.

Dr. David Glass, chairman of the UT Austin Psychology Department, says children subjected to noisy surroundings have trouble discriminating between similar-sounding words -- such as "gear-bear" or cope-coke.

When a child is unable to discriminate between basic speech sounds, Dr. Glass says he has a hard time learning to associate those sounds with written symbols, and therefore reading skills are impaired.

BRUSH CONTROL

The latest developments in brush control and range improvement will be viewed and discussed at the 5th annual Statewide Brush Controland Range Improvement Field Day at Vernon on Oct. 4. The event will feature a tour of the historic Waggoner Ranch in the morning and a research-in-progress report in the afternoon at the WilbargerCounty Auditorium. Tours will begin at the auditorium at 8 a.m, 9:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m.

New Way Found To Purify Water

Clean, pure water for millions of rural Americans may be close to reality, thanks to a discovery by scientists of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

The need is great. There are still about five million Americans who don't have piped running water in their homes. And of other millions who do, many get their water from wells or ponds with little or no purification. Tests show that many of these sources are highly contaminated.

In this period of shortages it may come as no surprise to hear that many cities are presently scrambling for chlorine, an essential for present water purification plants. Chlorine is also essential for manufacturing plastic and hundreds of other items and is in very short supply.

So it's doubly welcome to hear that scientists at Texas A&M University have developed a system for purifying rural water supplies that uses electricity and the chlorine already present in salt in most water.

Researchers with the Department of Agricultural Engineering have been experimenting for several years with an electrochemical water purification system. The color and cloudy appearance of most water is caused by particles, algae and bacteria suspended in the water. And these very small particles don't normally settle because of their small size and the small negative electrical charge on their surface. This negative charge causes them to repel each other instead of gathering in clusters and settling. The system uses electricity that 1) causes them to settle and 2) frees chlorine from salts and kills bacteria.

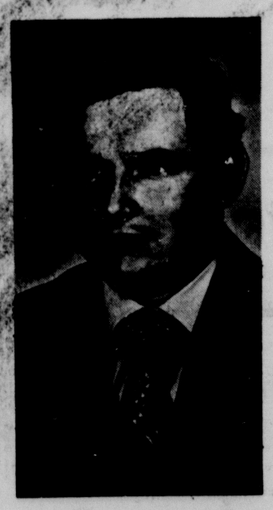
Water treated with this system passes the U. S. Public Health Drinking Water Standards. There are significant reductions in hardness turbidity, color, iron and other minerals.

Speaking of this discovery, TAES Director, Dr. Jarvis E. Miller said: "I'm especially pleased with this research. It's obviously in line with our responsibility to help improve living conditions in rural areas and our continuing concern for the well-being of all our citizens. Clean, pure water should be available to all our people.

"For many years, much of the research of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station has been concerned with providing a better environment for all. This work, of course, has been in addition to research helping our producers of food and fiber.

"This experimental prototype for water purification is perhaps two or three years from manufacture and your local store," Miller added. "But it is of such long-range importance that we're announcing it now so that we can perhaps discovery and home use."

DAVE SCHLIPF, construction purchasing agent at Aluminum Company of America's Paradise Point (Va.) transfer station, has transferred to Rockdale Works and will assume the same position. He will be responsible for the purchas- Rockdale's new construction projects.



DOUG RAY, a native of Rockdale and a graduate of Texas A&M University, has joined Aluminum Company of America's Rockdale Works as a maintenance technician, according to mechanical engineering manager Duncan McGregor.

Mexico Hard Hit By Inflation

By Ernesto Mendoza

MEXICO CITY

Reuter - Mexico, still recovering from a series of natural disasters, is another country hard hit by inflastion.

The high cost of living has brought demands for pay rises of up to 33 per cent and warnings of economic ruin from employers.

The wage controversy, which threatens to spark strikes by the 2,250,000 - Strong Mexican workers Confederation (CTM) came in the wake of Mexico's worst earthquake and floods which left 800 people dead and widescale damage.

Inflation is evident everywhere. Restaurant menus in Mexico City look like Patchwork quilts and as old prices are crossed out. Sirloins in many steak houses have shrunk in size.

President Luis Echeverria blames inflation on foreign factors but the ordinary Mexican does not really care whether it is imported or not. It means a hole in his pocket just the same.

One motorist stopped by a motorcycle policeman for speeding handed over a customary 20-peso "mordida," or bribe.

"Inflation, brother,", the policeman said, and the driver had to give another 10 pesos.

The CTM demanded a 40-hour, five-day week early this year, but agreed to await the findings of a commission set up by Echeverria.

Meantime, living costs have shot up and the workers are apparently more anxious to earn money than gain more leisure time.

Mexico's inflation rate was five per cent last year but this doubled by May this year, according to the Central Bank of Mexico.

It is expected to reach 15 per cent by the end of the year, because of crop losses caused by the floods. Corn which goes into tortillas -- the Mexican staple food -- is among the crops most affected.

"We workers have to recover our purchasing power," said Fidel Velazquez, the veteran CTM leader. "We will demand a 33 per cent wage increase."

To head off the growing clamor, congress recently passed a law raising the minimum wage.

Echeverria gave a 15 per cent pay rise to the armed forces, an important instrument of Mexico which has been called upon both in times of disaster and student riots.

He also raised the pay of government workers, a step followed almost immediately by private bankers who gave their 110,000 employes pay boosts of up to 15 per cent.

Private businessmen and indistrialists are firmly against the 33 per cent demand and strike threats by the CTM.

The dominant ram in a herd of Rocky Mountain Big horn sheep usually get the pick of breeding females, National Geographic says. But dominant rams must wage more horn-splitting fights with youthful challengers, and consequently can expect shorter lifespans.

A Penetrating Story

A new push pin hanger, requiring only a push of the thumb to penetrate most wall surfaces, is available in five designs and antique brass or antique silver finish. They are (left to right) Rose, Eagle, Fleur-de-Lis, Colonial and "functional" (in foreground). Made of durable cast metal, the decorative picture hangers have tough, tempered steel pins permanently anchored at an angle for maximum holding. They support up to 20 pounds and are available from the Homecraft Division of Gries Reproducer Co.

LONG MESSAGES

To send a radio message -- traveling at the speed of light -- and get an answer back from the opposite side of the Milky Way galaxy in which earth lies would require 160,000 years, the National Geographic Society says.

Farm Bureau Leader Urges Continued Exports

WACO

Texas Farm Bureau President J. T. Woodson has urged congressional and Administration leaders to oppose export controls on agricultural products.

In a telegram to six national leaders, Woodson said exports are vital to balance of payments, domestic price stability, confidence in the U. S. as a trading partner, and position of the U. S. in international trade agreements.

"Texas Farm Bureau members solidly support expanding exports of agricultural commodities and developing mutually advantageously trade with other nations," Woodson said in the wire.

Telegrams were sent to President Nixon, Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, Treasury Secretary George Shultz, Cost of Living Council Director John Dunlop, and Texas Senators John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen.

The House recently passed a bill (H.R. 8547) to increase the President's authority to control exports of materials and agricultural commodities. The Senate is now holding hearings on similar bills (S. 2053 and S. 2411) which would increase the President's authority to limit exports.

Woodson said some processors of agricultural raw materials are exerting influence on Congress and the Administration to limit exports.

The TFB president said "exports in recent months have brought decent prices and incomes to U. S. farmers and ranchers for the first time in memory."

The fiscal 1973 year export sales, which were 60 percent higher than a year ago, required the output of 85 million acres of the U.S. cropland -- or the production of one of every four acres harvested, Woodson said.

Texas farmers' and ranchers' share of the 1973 fiscal year export sales amounted to almost $800 million, he pointed out.

Czechs To Celebrate Special Day At Fair

Texans of Czech heritage will join thousands of Czechs Americans from other states to celebrate their special day at the State Fair October 7th. "The World Gateways Exposition" runs from October 6-21.

Czech Day at the State Fair of Texas is a long-time tradition for the past 33 years, they have come from across Texas and neighboring states to renew old friendships and to make new ones; to watch native dances and indulge in native food.

A gay, colorful group wearing bright, hand-embroidered costumes will dance the Beseda, and sing Czech songs in the Coliseum and Mobil Stage. Beseda circles and Czech songs will also be presented in the Woman's Department at 1 p.m. October the 7th.

The Sokols, gymnastic groups from Ennis, Fort Worth, Houston and Dallas will give demonstrations in the Coliseum. "The Texas Roundup", sponsored by the Sokol Southern District has been added to the Sokol program.

In the tradition of the Czech Day, trophies will be presented to the oldest married couple in attendance as well to the oldest lady and gentlemen present, who will reign as King and Queen for the day.

The program in the Coliseum is from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, and in the Band-Shell from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 7th.

The Czech Day Program will be full of joyful and interesting happenings. Don't miss it.

Riot Of Colors Chosen For Dorms

There's a riot going on in University of Texas dormitories -- but it's a riot of color.

UT officials have approved a policy that allows dorm residents to paint their own rooms any color they desire. Regal Violet, Festival Green Empire Yellow, Cornflower and Fascination (that's purple) are some of the colors chosen so far.

UT furnishes the paint, students provide the muscle. The idea is to make the student's life more pleasant and to allow for individual esthetic tastes.

Oriental Hotel Is Most Popular

By Trevor Goodchild

BANGKOK

Reuter -- The Oriental Hotel in Bangkok, a city landmark and long-time favorite of far eastern travellers and novelists like Somerset Maugham and Joseph Conrad, is back in business after being partly destroyed by fire.

Oldest of the city's hotels, the Oriental has stood on the bustling Chao Phya River, of "River of Kings." and played host to the famous, wealthy, and simply curious for more than 85 years.

European royalty has danced in its rooms, budding authors have worked out their tales of the East on its verandah, Japanese and American soldiers have paced its lawn, while others have just stood on the waters edge idly watching sampans and barges pass by.

The Oriental's attraction has always been its position as the only Bangkok hotel actually beside the river, still the heart of the city and setting for much of the Thailands history. And it was this position that saved it from far worse damage when fire broke out in the colonial-style oldest part of the hotel last month.

Within minutes of the alarm being given, a fleet of fire-fighting boats rushed to the scene from their mooring up river. The firemen fought the blaze, which was centred in the hotels most luxurious rooms -- the royal suites -- as hotel staff evacuated some 200 guests to safety.

"If the firemen had to have come through the congested streets of Bangkok to reach us, we would not have had much left around us today," Ankana Gilwee, Front office manager for 23 years said afterwards.

As it was, the blaze gutted the roof and interior of the royal sites but left intact the colonial facade of the hotel's river entrance, a familiar sight to any tourist who has ever taken a trip on theChao Phya.

The hotel management estimated the damage done by the fire -- believed caused by an electrical wiring fault -- at between $150,000 and $250,000.

Work on restoring the royal suites, guests are again being accommodated in a newer wing and a modern tower block built 15 years ago to form the hotel's street entrance.
